Open House London at Temple

Revealing Magna Carta

Saturday 19 – Sunday 20 September 2015

In this 800th anniversary year of the 1215 Magna Carta, you are invited for a fascinating access all areas visit to one of London's greatest hidden gems. The Temple, centre of legal training and the practice of law in London, consists of the Middle Temple and Inner Temple Inns of Court and the historic Temple Church. It has been home to a host of characters throughout history; from the Knights Templar to Sir Walter Raleigh, Samuel Johnson and Gandhi and has inspired such greats as Charles Dickens and Sir Christopher Wren.

This year's historic anniversary is being celebrated both nationally and internationally, most recently with a celebration at Runnymede overseen by Her Majesty the Queen. Over the weekend, Temple will truly open the doors on where Magna Carta began to reveal its role in our modern world. With guided building and garden tours, mock trials and children's courts, family friendly theatre productions and musical entertainment, there will be an array of activities to enjoy. When it's time to rest, head to the street food market in our award winning garden or to a pre-booked lunch in Inner Temple Hall.

There's something for everybody at Temple this September.
