Middle Temple Mentoring Scheme

Each of us at some stage of our careers has felt the need to speak to someone more experienced on a confidential basis about a work related issue who can offer their perspective and insight. Mentoring can provide a safe, non-judgemental and confidential environment for such discussions to take place with a well-informed, objective sounding board who will listen and provide guidance as to how we might achieve our career goals. Mentoring has become a widely used way of managing talent in many areas of business, industry and the professions.

The Middle Temple Scheme has been developed to assist Mentees to deal with career development issues and as a collateral benefit to assist with both social mobility and retention at the Bar.

Who can benefit? The scheme is intended to assist men and women from all backgrounds with career development from first tenancy or employment as an employed barrister (not a paralegal) through to retirement.
